Lynda.com

The screenshot shows the Lynda.com website interface. At the top, the Lynda.com logo is on the left, followed by a 'LIBRARY' dropdown menu. A search bar with the placeholder text 'Search for the software or skills you want to learn' is in the center, and a user profile icon is on the right. The navigation menu is open, displaying a list of categories: 3D + Animation, Audio + Music, Business, CAD, Design, Developer, Education + Elearning, IT, Marketing, Photography, Video (highlighted), and Web. To the right of the menu, there are three columns of content: 'Topics' (Audio for Video, Color Correction, DSLR Video, Filmmaking, Motion Graphics, Shooting Video, Video Editing, Video Pre-Production, Visual Effects), 'Software' (After Effects, Avid, Final Cut Pro, iMovie, Motion, Nuke, Premiere Pro, Trapcode, Vimeo, YouTube, SpeedGrade), and 'Learning Paths' (Become a Multimedia Specialist, Become a Film Producer, Become a Motion Graphics Artist, Become a Documentary Filmmaker). Each column has a 'See All' button. Below the menu, there are several learning path cards. The first row includes 'Stay Competitive in Design', 'Become a Print Production Professional', and 'Become a Digital Illustrator'. The second row includes 'Become a Graphic Designer', 'Become a User Experience Designer', 'Become a Design Business Owner', and 'Design a Comic Book'. The third row includes 'Advance Your Skills in UX Design', 'Publish an eBook', 'Become a Digital Painter', and 'Improve Your Drawing Skills'. Each card shows the title, a brief description, and the duration of the learning path.

DISPATCHES FROM

Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

The Oxford African American Studies Center turned ten years old in 2016, a milestone that was difficult to imagine in the early days of online reference publishing. Since its founding, AASC has built on its initial foundation by adding thousands of new articles, primary source documents, and learning resources.
